

Safety Wherever I Go

Wherever I go, there is something – or someone – to help keep children safe.

Wherever I go, there are places with fences, ramps, rails, walkways, doors, or locks that help to keep children safe.

© Carol Gray, 2013. Exclusive and restricted permission is hereby granted to print the Stories and activities in The Social Story Sampler for use with an individual or small group in a home, educational or clinical setting. May not be copied or used in presentation, or for financial gain. All other rights and restrictions apply.

Wherever I go, there is safety equipment that helps to keep children safe. Things like helmets, life jackets, or seat belts.

Wherever I go, there are signs to help keep children safe.

Wherever I go, there are laws to keep children safe. That's one reason why children wear seatbelts in a car.

Wherever I go, there are rules to help keep children safe. When I am at school, my class forms a line to walk safely from one place to another.

Wherever I go, there are people that help to keep children safe. Parents and grandparents, crossing guards, teachers, police officers and firefighters all work to keep me safe.

Wherever I go, there are signs, equipment, laws, rules, and people working to keep children safe.

Wherever I go, there's one more person who may help to keep me safe. He will always be with me, every second of my whole life. That person is me!

